Puno: 5 groups out to get me

INTERIOR Undersecretary Rico E. Puno: I belong to "Times" group. They want me out.

By Alcuin Papa, Christian V. Esguerra and Norman Bordadora

INTERIOR UNDERSECRETARY Rico E. Puno claimed that five groups including one led by Local Government Secretary Jesse Robredo are working to have me ousted.

Puno told the Inquirer on Thursday night it was these five groups that had fed Archbishop Emeritus Oscar Cruz information that he was on the take from operators of the illegal numbers game "jueteng."

He named them as the group headed by Robredo, the Balay group, the Samar group, one composed of people interested in his post and another affiliated with former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

Puno claimed he belonged to neither the Balay nor Samar group.

"I'm with the Times group," he joked, referring to the street where the Aquino residence is. "I'm not a politician,

'Pork' in budget doubled

From ₱70M, 278 solons can get as much as ₱145M

By Michael Lim Ubac

THERE WILL BE MORE, not less, pork barrel funds for congressmen under the proposed P1.645-trillion National Budget for 2011.

From P70 million for each of the 278 congressmen, the controversial Priority Development Assistance Fund (PDAF) has in effect been increased to as much as P145 million for next year alone, a number of lawmakers confirmed yesterday.

In a closed-door, all-party caucus yesterday, the House leadership decided to give each representative an additional P50 million to be taken from the lump sum funds of the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) as contained in its proposed budget of P98.9 billion.

All congressmen except for party-list representatives will also get as much as P25 million each as their share of the Road User's Tax, which is collected annually from owners of private and public vehicles as a motor vehicle user's charge (MVUC).

"I am shocked that the DBM (Department of Budget and Management) has agreed to give all district representatives an additional P50 million each from the DPWH lump sum funds, as admitted by the House leadership to the media this (Friday) afternoon," Bayan Muna Rep. Teddy Casiño said in an interview.

The P50 million is on top of the existing pork barrel funds, according to

Shalani, Noy now singing 'Knowing When to Leave'

THE FLAME has burned out.

The country's first bachelor-President and Shalani Soledad, his girlfriend of a little over a year, have called it quits, a source close to President Aquino confirmed last night.

The relationship ended where it began—in a restaurant.

The breakup, the source said, happened just two weeks ago at Alfredo's, the restaurant in Quezon City where the couple first dated.

There is no third party, the sources also said.

Asked last night if the breakup was indeed true, Soledad, a councilor of Valenzuela City said in a text message—"I'd rather not answer that for the moment."

In a dinner with Inquirer editors on Monday, the President

LIFESTYLE

On his first foreign trip last month, President Aquino took a lean delegation and flew via commercial airlines to the United States and back. He stayed at the Sofitel hotel in New York instead of the more expensive Waldorf Astoria.

Executive Secretary Paquito Ochoa placed the cost of the working visit to New York and San Francisco at P20 million, just a third of the P76 million that former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's party spent on a US trip from July 29 to Aug. 5 last year.

At one point on the trip, Mr. Aquino and his party took lunch at a hotdog stand in Manhattan, paying $54 (a total of about P2,400), a sharp contrast to the million-peso dinner that Arroyo and her entourage had at Le Cirque.

His low-key approach extends to shunning the use of sirens, blinkers and counter flow to get past ordinary motorists in Manila and to junking the idea of naming government projects after him or using his pictures in tarpaulins.

Noy opens largest corn facility in SEA

By Norman Bordadora

REINA MERCEDES, Isabela—President Aquino yesterday inaugurated the P500-million Reina Mercedes Corn Processing Center in this old farming town, the biggest post-harvest facility not just in the Philippines but in all of Southeast Asia.

"The small corn farmers will directly benefit from this," Mr. Aquino said at the commissioning rites for the facility during which he ceremonially switched on the equipment that started the center's operation.

The immediate benefit for the farmers will be in the form of higher incomes and better yields because of the infrastructure and the machines that will dry and process their corn, Mr. Aquino said.

The RMCC, built at a cost of P500 million, will help local farmers by directly purchasing their produce of fresh corn-on-the-cob, and processing them

A COPY of the much-awaited Malacañang review of the Incident Investigation and Review Committee (IIRC) findings on the Aug. 23 hostage crisis has been leaked to the media.

The Palace yesterday distanced itself from the copy, saying the public should just await the release on Monday next week of the official review by Executive Secretary Paquito Ochoa and Ed de Mesa, chief presidential legal counsel.

Comelec puts 2,300 villages on watch list

By Jocelyn R. Uy

MORE THAN 2,300 barangays (villages) across the country have been placed under the Commission on Elections' (Comelec) watch list for possible politically-motivated violence as the country goes for the synchronized barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan (Youth Council) elections.

Comelec spokesperson James Jimenez told reporters yesterday that the 2,300 barangays were identified as election "hot spots" due to either the presence of intense political rivalries or threats posed by communist or secessionist rebels.

"There are two categories of areas on the watch list," noted Jimenez.

He said grouped under Category 1 were areas with existing intense political rivalries and, where politically motivated election-related violence occurred during the May 2010 elections.

Barangays under Category 2 are areas with "serious armed threats" emanating from the New People's Army and secessionist groups, particularly in the southern Philippines, according to Jimenez.

Under the Comelec watch list made public yesterday, 324 areas have been identified under Category 1 while 2,007 districts have been named under Category 2 out of the 42,028 barangays in the Philippines, as of Sept. 21.

In Metro Manila, only two barangays—Bagumbayan in Taguig City and Payatas in Quezon City—have been placed under Category 1.

The Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao has the greatest number of barangays on the watch list—734 villages as "hot spots" due to presence of secessionist groups. Only 34 barangays are listed as areas of concern due to political rivalries.

The Bicol Region placed second, with 296 barangays identified as areas of concern, 23 under Category 1 and 273 under Category 2.

At least 11 barangays in Ilocos were placed under Category 1 of the Comelec watch list and 183 areas under Category 2.

The Davao region has 305 barangays identified as election hot spots, 96 percent of them listed under Category 2.

The military and the police have reported several attacks by communist rebels in past elections.

Communist rebels had been accused of staging an ambush that killed two soldiers, two policemen and a poll watcher during the May automated polling in Compostela Valley, one of the strongholds of the communist movement.

"These areas are on the watch list not just because of political rivalry but because we expect some election-related violence in connection with the presence of local communist movement and secessionist groups," Jimenez said.

He added that the list might or might not change as the barangay elections draw closer.

The balloting is to be held on Oct. 25, which has been declared a special nonworking holiday.

SKINNY jeans and tank, both worn by Russell Brand and Katy Perry

COLOR-CODED: Victoria and David Beckham

Wearing matching his-and-hers outfits doesn't have to be tacky, if you know the basics of chic love fashion

By [illegible] Lagarde
Contributor

LOVE IT OR HATE IT, more and more couples are choosing to express—their togetherness. It's kind of an Asian-thing, this "matchy-matchy" fashion habit, likely developed as a less-obvious alternative to PDA (Public Display of Affection).

There have been mixed reviews, ranging from those who find it endearingly cute to those who deem it cheesy, tacky, ridiculous.

From the streets of South Korea to HK and to Manila, couple outfits have become quite the rage as [illegible] have actually come out with matching his and her clothes and accessories.

This has caught on in the West, too, with posh couple Victoria and David Beckham leading the fashion pack. Katie Holmes and Tom Cruise have also been spotted in couple outfits, along with Katy Perry and Russell Brand.

I think there's nothing wrong with it, as long as you don't end up looking like twin wannabes with matching pieces from head-to-toe [illegible] the only exception of elderly kooky couples, who do it for easier identification in case one of them gets lost...).

The key to pulling off matching ensembles is to put together a coordinated look without giving away its [illegible] altogether. So what are stylish ways to match things up?

Take cues from love chic couples.

PREP SCHOOL
Jazz up an otherwise blah campus look with interesting prints and accessories.

Match your moods

It's not so much the specific pieces as your look that should go hand in hand. Do you go for something preppy? Sporty chic? Feel like going rocker? How about Upper East Side [illegible]?

Be creative and think of it as a dress code only the two of you are privy to.

Complement your colors

When I say complement, I don't mean color-coordinate. The era of matching the color of one's clothes with the shoes and bags is long past—it's not going to happen anytime soon in the couples department either. Simply put, it's all about picking a color scheme in [illegible] and working with it.

Agree on your accessories

Round out an outfit with coupled pieces that pop, like quirky pendants, geek glasses, cover-ups or other add-ons. As far as matching ensembles go, this would probably be the least subtle you can opt for.

Own your outfit

Even on its own, what you're wearing must look just as loud. The importance of maintaining your individuality in outfit [illegible] enough. Dressing couple outfits should be a fun exercise in collaborative style, instead of just another [illegible] to scream to the whole world just how crazy you are for each other—or the rest of us might think you're just plain crazy.

After a series of go-see sessions in 31 SM malls throughout the Philippines, thousands of contestants, and load of fun, SM's Rock Toon Fest Model Search had a Grand Fashion Show last September 19, 2010 at the SM Mall of Asia Music Hall.

The show featured 20 young talents who emerged as the Toon Fest's top winners and will have a chance to model for SM's Children's Wear Department. But with the many cute, adorable and talented kids discovered during the search, the rest were also able to join in the parade.

The Rock Toon Fest Grand Fashion show showed kids wear their original Toon Fest outfits: Tinker Bell dresses with ruffles and lace that give girls some sparkle and magic, storybook style with Snow White tops and tutu skirts, and sporty outfits that can be mixed and matched from Cars featuring the popular lightning McQueen.

During the event, a kiddie rock band definitely added a fun to the show, while girls had their chance to get free make-over sessions from ELD and BabyMoo.

But the excitement doesn't end on the runway, as kids discover Toon dressing from SM. The wonderful world of cartoons, after all, can never be out of style as boys and girls can now enjoy clothes inspired by their favorite toon characters. Little girls can get that fairy tale look with Disney Princess, Tinker Bell, and Barbie clothes, while boys can get into the fashion action with tees, hoodies, and jeans from Cars, Garfield, Snoopy, and Mickey Mouse.

The Rock Toon Fest Grand Fashion show is a project of the SM Department Store and the SM Mall of Asia. The Original Cartoon Apparel for kids is now available at the Children's Wear Department of the SM Department Store.

"GLEE" CAST. What you see isn't always what you get.

What Lea Michele thinks of Charice

LOS ANGELES—Will there be more diva-offs between Lea Michele and Charice? Javier Bardem will portray the former lover of which character? And, who plays which role in the much-awaited "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" tribute episode?

ONLY IN HOLLYWOOD

Ruben V. Nepales

These were among the questions answered by "Glee's" stars and co-creator Ryan Murphy on our recent visit to the show's set. As promised, we're sharing excerpts of our interviews. The cast was divided into two panels.

Here, we feature our conversation, punctuated by laughter, with Kevin McHale, Lea Michele, Cory Monteith, Matthew Morrison and Amber Riley.

Ryan sat in and allowed them to disclose which characters they'll play in the show's homage to the cult classic, "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

Later, we got a partial list of "Glee" characters and their "Rocky Horror" parts: Rachel is Janet; Finn is Brad; Mercedes, Frank-N-Furter; Kurt, Riff Raff; Quinn, Patsy/Magenta; Tina, Patsy/Columbia; Brittany Columbia; Santana, Magenta; Mike, Eddie; Dr. Carl, Eddie; Sam, Rocky; and Artie plays Narrator/The Commentator/Dr. Scott. (Excerpts of our interview (in tomorrow's column—the second group).

Rivalry

Can we expect more diva-offs between you and Charice in future episodes?

Lea: There will be more diva-offs in the future, but Ryan never takes things to places you expect them to go. So, I don't think it's going to be the typical rivalry. Charice was wonderful. She's definitely the tiniest ball of talent I've ever seen in my life. Charice is beyond talented!

What do you sing in the shower?

Lea: It was that "Funny Girl" song (which she sang in a mini show before the interview). I've been obsessed with Barbra Streisand since I was a kid. She was the only person in the film when I felt I looked like me.

Amber: I practice a lot of opera pieces.

Cory: I've been singing Pavarotti's (name), I don't know why.

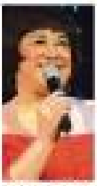

Kevin: I do a lot of Michael Bublé. In my head, there's like a big band around me.

Matthew: I do opera because it sounds best in the shower.
